

Matteson Ellis Comments on TRACE 2018 Global Enforcement Report in the Wall Street Journal

"Antibribery Efforts Outside the U.S. Picked Up in 2018"

Matteson Ellis commented on TRACE International's 2018 Global Enforcement Report, which indicates that government authorities outside the U.S. are increasingly clamping down on foreign bribery, with a 29 percent increase in bribery investigations by non-U.S. government authorities. The increase is a result of the adoption of anticorruption standards and more international cooperation in enforcement, Ellis said.
