

Miller & Chevalier Named Tax Policy Firm of the Year at International Tax Review's Americas Tax Awards 2016

09.17.2016

Washington, DC, September 16, 2016 -- Miller & Chevalier Chartered is pleased to announce that the firm was recognized last night by International Tax Review (ITR) at the publication's Americas Tax Awards 2016, held in New York, NY. The firm was named "Americas Tax Policy Firm of the Year," marking the fourth occasion the firm has received this distinction in the past five years. Firm Member and Tax Department Chair George A. Hani and Counsel Natasha Goldvug accepted the award on behalf of the firm.

The International Tax Review's Americas Tax Awards 2016 recognize the leading tax and transfer pricing firms in 15 countries in North, South and Central America. The awards cover international tax matters only and winning firms are chosen based on their matters' size, innovation, ingenuity and impact. Selection for the awards is based on editorial research and market interviews.

About International Tax Review and the Americas Tax Awards

Established in 1990, ITR is a leading monthly publication on international tax strategy and cross-border tax issues. Between May and July 2016, ITR asked law firms and tax advisory firms to submit examples of their best work in tax transactions, tax disputes, indirect tax, restructuring and transfer pricing and for best tax innovation and tax technology. ITR's editorial staff considered these submissions and information obtained through interviews with tax directors and tax legal and advisory professionals to compile shortlists and choose winners for each of the country and regional awards. The awards represent opinions of the market on the leading tax advisers in the Americas based on their work between June 1, 2015 and May 31, 2016.
